CHASE CITY, VA., Nov. 18.—The new military company organized here was inspected last night by Colonei Jo. Lane Stern. There are sixty-six men on the roll, and a good looking body of men. He told the company that it would be furnished with the most *pproved modern rifles, and their uniforms furnished by the State. The officers of the company are: Captain. Adam T. Finch: First Lieutenant, J. Ellis Brame: First Sergeant, George Glimore; other Sergeants. Thomas: W. Green, Milton S. Walker, J. Watkins Goode, Bernard Bigger and R. H. Jennings; Corporals, A. J. Moore and R. E. Watkins. The field trials to take place here on the 80th instant, are looked to with great interest by dog owners and huntsmen. Game is reported fairly plentiful, and the Mecklenburg controls thousands of acres of hunting grounds for the exclusive use of their guests. The hotel company pays the taxes on lands of farmers for the sole privilege of hunting.

Rebuilding has commenced on lots in burned district. Three brick stores already going up and others will follow. The new houses will be decided improvement on those destroyed.

The Frank Vogel Company, of Alles gheny, Pa., are preparing for a pickling establishment near here. A number of farmers have agreed to cultivate a large acreage in cucumbers and deliver the crop for pickling at forty cents per bushel. The recruiting station here for the United States army was not a success. After weeks of effort not a single recruit was secured. Enlistment in the army did not seem to be popular.

Bishop Randolph. of the Episcopal Church, was here this week and delivered a splendd sermon and confirmed all applicants for membership.

The sales of tobacco continue to increase on this market, and a decided improvement in prices is apparent. Farmers seem to be satisfied to a greater extent than a few weeks ago. Better graues are marketed and consequently higher prices are obtained.

The answer is highly sensational and is couched throughout in very vigorous language. The concluding paragraph, following general and specific charges made in the notice of contest, is as follows: "And we shall, before the Legislature of Virginia, deny the right of you or each of you to be scated in the House of Delegates of the General Assembly, basing your claims, as you do, on falsehood and misrepresentation, which we can but believe you induige in for the purpose of gaining cheap notoristy for yourselves and keeping the Democratic party of Norfolk county in a state of turmoil and unrest; and shall resist the effort which you make to have our certificates of election revoked and to have yourselves and keeping the Democratic party of Norfolk county in a state of turmoil and unrest; and shall resist the effort which you make to have our certificates of election revoked and to have yourselves declared members of the House from Norfolk county."

Forhaps the most sensational part of the reply of the contestees is the following: "We charge and shall prove that at the said election you and each of you received a large number of negro votes in the various precincts of Norfolk county, and that a large number of white Republicans, together with those negro voters, were in league with you to insure your election to the offices which you sought."

If there was any iregularity at the precinct it is desired by the contestants to throw it out. The same iregularities, Messrs. Parker and Owens contend, existed at the precincts of East and West Berkley and Churchland, where the Straightouts polled a majority. The contestees further declare that they "deny and brand as false the charge that we are the candidates of the regular Democratic party, while you represent a faction of that party which has never stood for party resularity."
